CLOTHES RATIONING AVERTED

Few people know how close the country was to clothes rationing a few months ago, at the peak of the war. The key figure who helped prevent it was shrewd Pittsburgh department store wizard Irwin Wolf.

Wolf and WPB boss Donald Nelson held several conferences on the problem, at which Wolf pointed out that retailers, worried about shortages, were buying all the clothes in sight, and hoarding huge amounts of one item while having no stocks of other goods.

Finally, Nelson asked Wolf to sit down with Joseph Weiner, head of the civilian supply section of WPB, John Davidson, representing the wholesalers, and Earl Reed, another key WPB official. After going over several involved proposals, they retired from the conference room and drafted a simple order which limited all retailers to the same amount of stock they had during the previous year. The proposal was immediately adopted by Nelson, and clothes rationing was avoided.

Nelson now calls Wolf's plan "one of the saviors of the civilian supply situation in the U. S."

NOTE—One effect of Wolf's program is that merchants will carry over only small amounts of "ersatz" merchandise in the postwar period, will not be stuck with poor-quality merchandise to unload on the money-flushed public.

AFTERMATH OF V-DAY

The White House has just received a confidential report showing that 66.4 per cent of American families have saved only 11.6 per cent of the money put aside by the nation during war time. In other words, the upper one-third bracket of the people tucked away 88.4 per cent.

The same report points out that, immediately after V-day in Europe, most plants which continue operating will cut overtime, thus dropping wages from 15 to 25 per cent. One of the problems officials face is a wild rush to cash war bonds, not for lush spending, but for bare necessities of workers in middle and lower-income brackets.

All these figures now have President Roosevelt concerned about what will happen in the first weeks immediately after the war. The president's economic advisers are telling him that continued prosperity in the postwar period will require his greater personal attention to domestic problems.

They figure that, if the nation can successfully come through the first few weeks after the armistice, then the demand for peacetime goods, long denied the public, will pick up national prosperity. However, the first weeks of readjustment are going to be tough.

DOLLAR-A-YEAR MEN

The full effect hasn't yet percolated down from the top but, before he left for China, Donald Nelson signed a new set of rules governing the appointment of — and the continued employment of — WPB dollar-a-year men. It has been felt first in the textile, clothing and leather divisions but gradually is beginning to result in changes elsewhere in the agency.

Dollar-a-year appointments for the war emergency period were okayed by the White House four years ago, the appointments to be made at the discretion of the agency chiefs without regard to existing law. Criticism of the early dollar-a-year appointments gradually resulted in a tightening of the policy, but Nelson never really put his foot down until last month.

Major dynamite in the order is Nelson's pronouncement that "No person may be employed on a dollar-a-year basis who would be required by his position on the War Production board to make decisions directly affecting his own company or its competitors." The same section bans dollar-a-year employment of all lawyers, all trade association officials, members of WPB industry advisory committees, or any individuals convicted of anti-trust violations.

Dozens of dollar-a-year men within WPB are daily called upon to formulate policy affecting their own industries, and consequently their own companies and competitors. At the same time, Nelson's order does not reach the even more serious problem of salaried employees in a position to make decisions affecting the companies from which they came to the government — or to which they will go when they leave Washington.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

☛ Jesse Jones, at the age of 70, has just come through a major operation, now appears to be in better health.

☛ Maury Maverick, who had spent a lot of time in France during World War I but saw little of its culture, can be given credit for the army's plan to supply competent guides to conduct servicemen on tours of historic monuments not only in France but in Egypt, Greece and every part of the world immediately after the armistice.

Last Rites Are Held for Edwin Albert Barker

Funeral rites were held last Thursday for Edwin Albert Barker, who passed away at his home on Infirmary road on Tuesday after a long illness.

A native of Rhode Island, Barker had lived in this valley for many years, and most of his life had been connected with some form of the fruit industry. In recent years he had held important positions with the California Prune and Apricot association.

He leaves his wife Edith P. Barker who is a sister of Mrs. Roy Watson of Campbell, and a nephew Courtland Watson of Arizona. An only son Cloyd Barker died some years ago.

Farewell services were held at the chapel of the roses, Oak Hill Memorial park, under the direction of Roger Darling garden chapel.

The meeting opened with the singing of America. Minutes and report of the executive board meeting were read by Mrs. LBen Howard, in the absence of the secretary, Mrs. F. B. Fossum. The budget for the year presented by Mrs. V. A. Thoeny, was accepted by the group. Mrs. G. A. Schuyler gave her report on the magazine subscription to date and new subscriptions were taken at the close of the meeting.

Chairman for the study group classes, Mrs. R. E. Page gave an interesting report on the success of the classes. Mrs. John McBain announced the membership drive was now in progress and later in the cafeteria accepted the membership dues.

A salvage drive to be conducted by the unit was voted upon and accepted by members. Trustees of the school having presented the teachers with a new teachers room this year, the unit was favorable to a donation to be used in helping to furnish this room.

The P.T.A. unit has agreed to help with the sale of War Stamps in the school. Any member wishing to serve in this capacity may get in touch with Mrs. Walter Williams. The grammar school unit was among those organizations sponsoring Dr. Frank D. Slutz of Dayton, Ohio, nationally known authority on youth training, who appeared in Campbell on October 9 and 10.

Mrs. Walter Williams reported on the Sixth district meeting held recently at the Y.W.C.A. in San Jose. The introduction of new members was followed by a question box conducted by Supt. Henley. Supt. Henley then introduced Mrs. H. C. Gardner who is in charge of the school cafeteria. Mrs. Gardner spoke on the extremely crowded conditions in the cafeteria,

A PRISONER of war camp will be "home" for the duration to Lieutenant Leonard E. (Gene) Hamaker of Santa Ana, California, who has drawn this caricature of life as he finds it in a German prison camp. Lieut. Hamaker was shot down over Paris December 20, 1942, and in prison camp has developed his talent for cartooning, and is now working on a book of cartoons of prison life. War Prisoners Aid, member agency of National War Fund, sends art material, recreational material and even utensils for cooking to men in prison camps.

Masons Honor Eastern Star

Charity Lodge No. 362 F. & A. M. was host Monday evening to the wives and other women relatives of its members, and others who are joining the Eastern Star which will be organized this evening.

The entertainment began with a barbecue dinner prepared by the officers and their wives and was a truly sumptuous feast.

A grill had been arranged in the rear of the Odd Fellows hall on which the steaks were prepared, while other items of the menu were cooked in the kitchen.

Cards and dancing were enjoyed after the banquet room was cleared.

The evening was planned primarily in honor of the new Eastern Star chapter.

Townsend Family In New Mexico

Irving Townsend writes that they are now located at Aztec, New Mexico, and that surprisingly, for such a semi-arid country they are living amongst apple, peach and pear orchards in the valley of the San Juan river. He adds that surrounding this lush little valley are the characteristic cactus and sagebrush mesas of that state.

The Townsends had been for several years at Hot Springs, Arkansas where the government has a large National park.

so parents are better able to understand the situation and cooperate with Mrs. Gardner.

Members adjourned to the cafeteria for refreshments served by the executive board. Supt. Henley introduced the teachers during the social hour. The room count prize went to Miss Emma Borzone's kindergarten class. Small children were cared for by members of the Camp Fire Girls.

Dr. F. D. Slutz Speaker At Kiwanis Meet

Dr. Frank D. Slutz of Dayton, Ohio, national leader of youth guidance who is conducting a series of talks and conferences in this county under the auspices of the Y.M.C.A. boys' work committee was the speaker at Tuesdays Kiwanis meeting at which James W. Dent was chairman.

Dr. Slutz made a stirring plea for understanding and a form of partnership between youth and "semi-oldsters" of today. He feels that there is little difference between the groups; the flux could be ease of approach to the oldsters.

One of his ideas for a community project would be the establishment of a vocational library available to the youth of the area.

Many other ideas extolling the working together of these groups were presented by the speaker.

Visitors were Arthur Tyn-dall of the grammar school faculty who supervised the youth center playground this summer, Glen Walton, Gene Hodges and J. M. Dahl, and Jim Gannon who is home on leave from the naval service.

Next week John Davison, county service member, will be the speaker with Dr. W. I. Merrill, chairman.

NO, IT ISN'T OVER!

After the swift sweep of our armies across France and Belgium, Americans here at home were ready to write off the war in Europe as virtually completed. But it hasn't panned out that way.

The stiff Nazi resistance which has developed in Holland and along the German western border has come as somewhat of a shock. It didn't seem possible after the enormous manpower losses in Russia and, since D-day, in France, that Hitler's war machine could hold up the Allied advance even with the help of the Siegfried Line.

Many of our military observers, however, still maintain that the Nazis will not be able to hold out long. They say that once we are able to get sufficient supplies moved up for an all-out assault on the westwall, it is bound to give way at one point or another.

They may be right, but the general tone has shifted from "sure victory in '44" to the probability that the European struggle may run into 1945. Winston Churchill has adjusted his sights to the less optimistic view.

Although our hopes of a quick march to Berlin have been chastened, we should not allow ourselves to become discouraged. Instead, we should renew our determination to back up our fighting men with every ounce of energy at our command. Of one thing we can be sure, our soldiers will not let us down no matter how hard the going is. We, in turn, must not let them down.

The lessons of the past two weeks should teach us that victories, like chickens, cannot be counted before they are hatched. The war in Europe will not be over until the Germans have ceased fighting. That sounds elementary, but we are inclined to forget it at times.

This war demands our full efforts right up to the last shot.

IT STILL PAYS

Recently, the Securities and Exchange Commission announced that the American people have doubled their savings in the past 2½ years. Cash, deposits, and Government Bonds now total $130 billion—an all-time high.

In a public comment from another source regarding these figures it was contended that we are probably getting poorer, in spite of our savings, since they are now being used for war purposes which are wholly unproductive toward bettering our standard of living.

To say that our present savings are wholly unproductive is hardly accurate. Part of them, at least, are used to finance civilian goods production. What is more, they are creating a tremendous reservoir of buying power for postwar purchases which will be productive and will contribute toward a higher standard of living.

And the statement that we are getting poorer can be misleading. It is true that the national debt has increased more than the total of individual savings. But the fact remains that those persons who have saved, and are saving, their money are improving themselves financially. The national debt cannot be ignored, but neither can individual savings be brushed aside.

The danger of the arguments about which we are commenting is that they may mislead some persons into thinking that saving their money is not important. Actually, it was never more important.

War or no war, thrift still pays. Let's not forget it.

IMPORTANCE OF PAPER

The need for saving paper continues to be a "must". Supplies of this vital war material are still short, and from present indications will be lacking for some time to come.

We hardly need remind the public that without paper the war effort would be badly handicapped, if not completely obstructed. If we had no paper, we'd have no warships. To build a seagoing battlewagon requires as much as 175 tons (not pounds) of blue prints.

There are thousands of other uses for paper in war time. Medical supplies and instruments of many kinds are transported in paper wrappings and containers. Thus protected they reach the fighting lines in the same sanitary condition as when they were shipped.

So don't destroy newspapers and magazines. Tie them in bundles and give them to the local salvage committee.

MINE DETECTORS

The British Army now uses dogs to detect mines. Almost any medium-sized breed will do. Loaned by private owners, the dogs are trained by soldiers of the Royal Veterinary Corps possessing infinite patience and understanding. The dogs' sensitive sense of smell enables them to detect mines buried in the ground. They are taught to indicate mines by freezing as a pointer does when marking game. Their casualties are less than if they were human since, being lighter than men, they can move among mines without the danger of exploding them. Each dog is kept in first-class condition so that his reactions may be as accurate and rapid as possible.

CALIFORNIA WAR CHEST

With a goal of $20 million—the third highest of any state in the nation—California set out this week to fill its War Chest.

This year's total for our state is $2 million higher than a year ago. Accordingly, we must give more generously to meet the need which has been greatly increased by the war.

The War Chest provides funds for the local Community Chest and also for such national and international activities as the Prisoners' Aid, United Seamen's Service, United Service Organizations and foreign relief agencies.

We know that our war agencies are doing a magnificent job in helping our fighting men both at home and abroad. Their services even reach into enemy countries to bring our men, who are prisoners, food, books, sporting equipment, and everything else which can possibly be provided.

The money we contribute helps win the war, for victory comes not only through building war machines, but building the morale of our servicemen and women. And no small part of that morale arises from the fact that soldiers and sailors know that War Chest funds are used to assist their wives and children whenever the need occurs.

The quota for California should be over-subscribed, for this State, more than many others, has met the harsh facts of war face to face. Among the men of Bataan, now behind the barbed wire of Japanese prison camps are many sons of California. To our shores are brought the wounded from the bitter engagements of the Pacific. And from our ports depart the men about to undergo the ordeal of battle with the Japs.

Let us fill the War Chest and fulfill our duty as Americans!

THE BOOK MARK

by marty

"SOME OF MY BEST FRIENDS ARE SOLDIERS" by Margaret Halsey.

Without a single degree of exaggeration, search as diligently as I could, no suggestion for the title of this book made its appearance throughout the entire story. Like numerous of her airy expressions, Miss Halsey apparently penned for the title the first conscious flash that marred her 'cute' brain.

On the front of the book jacket, the publishers have printed 'A Kind of Novel' by Margaret Halsey, in an attempt to warn the reader, no doubt. To say that the phrase 'A Kind of Novel' in any sense reveals, or for that matter, conceals the context of the book is a fallacy. In this especial instance, the article 'A' intimates a limitless possible theme.

Miss Halsey's rocket to renown in the flowering meadows of fiction, came as a result of the publication of "With Malice Toward Some"—the book that the average person remembers the title of but does not remember the author. This is her first published work in several years.

Don't pass judgement immediately when I say that this book is nothing but a pack of letters to a soldier boy. Honestly, though, that's all it is. But only Margaret Halsey can write letters to a soldier boy that nine-tenths of the reading public clamor to read. Margaret writes letters to her brother in the army, and in these letters she writes a story whose denouement never grows old. There is wit, there is humor, there is love, and there are heartaches, all told with effervescence and candid speech.

The publishers believe that it is one of the gayest, most moving and, at the same time, most important novels they have ever been privileged to present to the reading public. May I humbly attach my penny's worth and say ME TOO!

If you ever find happiness by hunting for it, you will find it, as the old woman did her spectacles, safe on her own nose all the time. —Billings.

Grace Moore Sings In San Jose Oct. 19

GRACE MOORE

The golden-haired, glamorous Grace Moore sings one week from tonight, October 19, as the opening event of the San Jose Concert Series in what promises to be as memorable a night as the San Jose musical season of nine years has known. Miss Moore, whose name and electrifying personality drew 200,000 people to Chicago's Grant Park, will sing songs by Debussy, Caesar Franck, Messager, Tchaikowsky, Giordano, Buzzi-Peccia, and English songs, accompanied by Otto Herz at the piano.

The San Francisco Opera Company on Monday evening, October 23, brings to San Jose the greatest offering of its season, "Lucia di Lammermoor" with Lily Pons, Jan Peerce, Ivan Petroff, Lorenzo Alvary, Thelma Votipka, John Garris, and Joseph Tissier. Coloratura sopranos, from Patti, Melba and Treville down to the present have always loved the role of the tragic Lucy, the sextette and mad scene being known the world over. Of all of Donizetti's tuneful, melodious scores, "Lucia" is without doubt his masterpiece.

Tickets are on sale at the Denny-Watrous box office, San Jose auditorium.

Loans to Veterans To be Considered

Two of the three member county committee of the farm security administration to consider loans to returning veterans who wish to establish themselves on farms, are J. Warren Knowles, Rincon avenue and Harry Barnes of Casey road. The third member is from Morgan Hill.

As the farm ownership loan funds are very limited this year the applications must be very carefully considered, and the qualifications of a veteran for a successful farmer determined as nearly as possible.

Ada Rebekah lodge will meet Tuesday evening, October 17th. The members are reminded to bring grabs and articles for the white elephant table. Committee for the evening will be Grace Gardner, Mollie Crawley, Ivy Triplett and Lillie Frazier.

Service & Dependability

Southern Pacific has been a part of western life for three quarters of a century. We've had our share of brickbats, and we've had our share of praise. Mostly we've been taken pretty much for granted, like the paper boy or the milkman.

Since Pearl Harbor, though, people generally have regarded Southern Pacific and the other railroads with new understanding and appreciation. Now, when the chips are down, they seem to realize how indispensable the railroads really are.

Because of Southern Pacific's strategic location in relation to the war against Japan, we have been called upon to carry an enormous westbound burden. In addition, we are handling vast quantities of raw materials and finished products of greatly expanded western industries, plus an abnormally large eastbound movement of foodstuffs.

The six facts below may help explain the unprecedented burden we are carrying, and why our service to civilians is not as good as we'd like it to be:

1 In freight and passenger volume, Southern Pacific is the third largest railroad in America. Only the Pennsylvania and New York Central are carrying a bigger load than Southern Pacific.

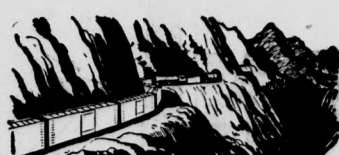

2 Southern Pacific's 15,000 miles of line (more than any other United States railroad) are predominately single track, requiring the most accurate and exacting kind of railroading.

3 Southern Pacific serves more military and naval establishments than any other railroad in the U. S. From New Orleans to Portland an endless chain of air bases and encampments adjoins our line.

4 We serve more military meals to personnel of the armed forces than any other two U. S. railroads combined. And, of course, service men and women have first call on our restricted ration points.

5 Southern Pacific crosses innumerable mountain ranges, and has to climb more major summits than any other U. S. railroad. It takes more locomotives to pull trains up steep mountain grades.

6 Southern Pacific has the main north and south line along the Pacific Coast, serving the principal ports of embarkation from San Diego to Portland. Naturally, troop trains must come first with us.

"Brighten the corner where you are..." That's what you're going to have to do for awhile yet. The War Production Board says the tungsten and nickel used in light globes is just not available in large enough quantities to assure us all the light globes we'd like. So it's up to us to switch off the switchers and save those volts!

Mrs. Anna M. Dalling wife of William Marley Dalling, of North Second street, who was taken to the hospital some fourteen months ago following a stroke, is still there and as yet has not responded materially to treatment.

A/C James Strimpel who graduated from Campbell high school in 1940 has now been graduated from the AAF bombardier school at Kirkland Field, New Mexico, as a bombardier flight officer.

Marine Pvt. First Class Harold A. Moulton, nephew of Miss Lina Moulton of Rt. 1, Box 45, has returned from the South Pacific combat area after 27 months of over-seas duty. He was with the famed Second Marine Division. Prior to enlisting he was employed by Guggenheim & Co., dried fruit packers.

ANDERSON

Ask any grower! He'll tell you that Jack kicked like a steer when food was ploughed under and wasted. Jack recognized the farm labor shortage and did something about it... he crusaded for higher farm prices and got them. Jack understands the grower's problems. He's the greatest insurance policy any agriculturist could have for the post-war era.

There are 185,000 telephone operators in the Bell System—the largest number in history. As telephone calls have increased, more people have been added to handle them.

Service generally is good but some Long Distance lines to war-busy centers get crowded. Then the operator may say—"Please limit your call to 5 minutes."

We appreciate the way you're going along with that suggestion.

Light HOUSEKEEPING CLEAN LAMPS CONSERVE LIGHT • HAVE MORE LIGHT

• Clean lamp bowls, washed in warm sudsy water and dried shining bright like a china plate are an important "first" in fall light housekeeping.

• Retire blackened lamp bulbs from active duty. Replace with bright new bulbs. Use the old bulbs in basement, garage and other places of infrequent, short-time use.

• Replace small-size bulbs with right-size lamps for adequate, easy seeing. Do you know, for example, a 100 watt bulb gives 50 per cent more light than four 25 watt globes?
